

PennAccess: Parking Garage 7 – 3220 South Street

Entrance Information:

3220 South Street . Philadelphia . PA . 19104

1. The entrance to the garage is on the southeast side of the building.

- There are several doors along the perimeter of the garage, but few of these are accessible and all are kept locked.

Elevator Information:

- A bank of two elevators is located in the northeast corner of the building. If you are planning to use these, you should park in the northern half of the building, as there are steep car ramps in the middle of the building. The only way reach the elevators from the southern side is to go up stairs, or to travel on the car ramps, which is both dangerous and steep.

Accessible Restroom:

- There are no accessible restrooms in this garage.

Building Information:

- There are several accessible parking spots just inside the ground entrance level to this garage. It is not advisable to park beyond this ground entrance level, because:
 - A. Although the elevator in the northeast corner will get you out of the building from the upper levels, the street level door back into the elevator bank is kept locked.
 - B. All of the ramps to the upper levels are graded and intended for motor vehicles only and traveling on them is very dangerous. From the southeast entrance, you must either traverse up at least one vehicle ramp or stairs, to reach the elevators.
 - C. Half of all of the upper levels are blocked by stairs.
